Married his Fair Captive.

There is an interesting romance connected with the marriage of bandit Henry Starr, now in jail here.

One night in August, 1892, a train was held up at Prior Creek, Ark.

Starr remained on the platform of the first coach while his men were securing the cash.

While he was standing there a young girl, wild with terror, rushed out, and before Starr could stop her, jumped off the train and ran away into the darkness. The bandit did not give the matter a moment's thought. The train was delayed about half an hour and then Starr and his men rode furiously away through the woods.

About a quarter of a mile away one of the robbers, who was riding in advance, came upon what seemed to be a dead girl. He put spurs to his horse and made him jump over the body. Several others followed, but when Starr came to the spot he dismounted and picked the girl up to see whether she was really dead or not.

Slowly she opened her eyes and gazed in a dazed way into the faces of the rough men around her. Instantly Starr recognized in her the girl whom he had seen run away from the train. He at once ordered one of the men to carry the girl along on his saddle. She was too frightened to make any remonstrance. The outlaws halted next day about 10 o'clock in a secluded canyon and pitched camp. Here Starr put his captive under the care of an Indian woman and gave orders to the men to leave her alone.

The girl was pretty, apparently about 16 years old. Every time Starr appeared she pleaded with him to take her back to her people. She said her name was Mary Jones and that her father lived in Joplin, Mo.
Her plea was unavailing.

On the third day reports came to the camp that the marshals were on the track of the robbers, and they were compelled to leave. He had by this time taken a fancy to Mary and had her ride by his side. The country through which the bandits traveled was a rough one. Starr noticed, however, that Mary complained less and less and had even grown to like him, but he knew also that she could not stand the rough treatment she was receiving, and when he was notified that the marshals were closing in on his band he resolved to send her to her home.

Before parting he told her he would someday go to Joplin and marry her.
She told him that she would wait for him. In three weeks Starr went to Joplin to see her. He had but little trouble in finding her, and after obtaining the consent of her parents he married her under the name of Frank Jackson. No one in Joplin knew him and he passed himself off for a New Mexican rancher.

From Joplin the young couple went to Las Vegas, N. M., and from there to Colorado Springs, where he was captured.—Denver dispatch to the MISSOURI NEWS.

It is reported that the Pike county corn crop will be cut short one-half for want of rain.

Grandma Collins died at her home at New Mottford, Pike county, one day last week at the ripe old age of 88 years.

Henry Jenkins, of Ashland, has about obtained his own consent to run for representative in Boone county next year.

Hon. Richard Dalton, now collector of the port of St. Louis, was among the speakers billed for the Florida, Monroe county, picnic yesterday.

Prof. W. T. Carrington, the able principal of the Mexico public schools, will probably be a candidate for state superintendent of public schools next year, having been mentioned for that honorable position. Prof. Carrington was the second strongest man for the place three years ago, but was defeated by the present incumbent, Prof. L.
E. Wolfe.

Thos. F. Gill, of Perry, has written a book entitled, "History of the Gill Family." The history goes back to 1718, and tells in the opening chapter how the name Gill originated, it being claimed that in 1718 that an Irish peasant found an infant on the shores of Ireland with a fish gill in its mouth, and from that the child was called Gill.
The kid found with a fish gill in its mouth was the great grandfather of Thos. F. Gill, the author of the book, "History of the Gill Family."

The Frankford correspondent of the Bowling Green Times gives the following account of a ball given at the mill in that place: There was a ball given at the mill Saturday night. There was a large crowd there. Quite a number from New London came down. About the only thing that happened to cause a laugh was when Eve Benn undertook to dance. Eve weighs about 215 pounds and has a foot on him that reminds one of a road scraper. He is about as graceful as a grizzly bear and to see him get out on the floor and cut lost and turn around like a dog chasing his tail, was right laughable.

Down in Pike county, at Bowling Green, one day last week Addison T.
Ogden was to have been arraigned in a justice's court to answer the charge of adultery with Mrs. Wade Brown, whose husband was a tenant on Og-den's farm. Before going to trial the case was compromised by Ogden and Brown, the faithless woman's husband, by the defendant's buying Brown's crop for $75 concealing a debt of $24 the prosecuting witness owed the defendant, and Brown agreeing to get off of Ogden's premises within 10 days. Very reasonable terms indeed for a man to escape arraignment on so serious a charge.

Among the incidents of childhood that stands out in bold relief, as our memory reverts to the days when we were young, none are more prominent than severe sickness. The young mother vividly remembers that it was Chamberlain's Cough & Remedy cured her of croup, and in turn administers it to her own offspring and always with the best results. For sale by all Druggists.

THE breach in the Democratic party in the United States senate is widening every day. The two wings are confronting each other in hostile array, which is growing more intensified and bitter at each session of the senate. Vest and Crockrell are leading the silver faction, while Voorhees, of Indiana, and his Republican allies are maintaining the gold standard. The situation is by no means encouraging to those who are expecting an amicable adjustment of the financial question, now before the country.

About Advertising.
Some of the brightest truths about advertising came from the tongue and the pen of N. C. Fowler, jr., of Boston. Samples:

The man who cannot use advertising in his business has no business to be in business; and generally he isn't.

The man who does not find advertising profitable in his business finds business unprofitable.

The day passed into history half a century ago when any brainy man dared to say that advertising did not pay.

Every merchant knows; and if he does not know he cannot be a merchant, that the more he advertises within reasonable bounds the more money he is liable to make.

The real merchant gives the same thorough, business like, brainy attention to his advertising that he gives to every other vital department of his business.

To get nourishment out of food one must adapt the food, its quality and quantity to the physical system.

To get good out of advertising one must adapt the quantity and the quality of the advertising to the goods he has to sell and to the people who may buy them.

A CHINESE BABY.

From the Philadelphia Ledger.

The City of Washington will soon lose one of its picturesque figures, as the present Chinese Minister's term soon expires, and he will take his little daughter back to China with him. Little Miss Mi was born in Washington two years ago. She can "chin-chin" a little in English, and is democratic in her mingling with and greeting other children in Dupont Circle, where she takes her doll, as droll and quaint a figure as one can see in weeks, in her red frocks, junk shoes and tiny embroidered cap, and is docile and serene herself. She is a model of manners to the wild little Americans in the park, blinking her little black eyes at the flower beds, pointing at the blossoms, clapping her hands with joy, but never exercising herself of the diplomatic privilege of defying the policeman and of arrest by helping herself to the posies.

A Terrible Mistake.

The editor of a weekly journal lately lost two of his subscribers through accidentally departing from the beaten track in his answer to correspondents. Two of his subscribers wrote to ask him his remedy for their respective troubles. No. 1, a happy father of twins, wrote to enquire the best way to get them safely over their teething, and No. 2 wanted to know how to protect his orchard from the myriads of grass hoppers. The editor framed his answer upon the orthodox lines but unfortunately transposed their names with the result that No. 1, who was blessed with the twins, read in reply to his query: "Cover them carefully with straw and set fire to them, and the little pests after jumping about in the flames a few minutes will speedily be settled." While No. 2, plagued with grasshoppers, was told to "Give a little castor oil and rub their gums gently with a bone."

A few people are still left outside the pale of knowledge as to what constitutes a ratio. A ratio of 16 to 1 puts 16 times as much weight into a silver dollar as the gold dollar contains of gold. A ratio of 20 to 1 would put enough more silver into the silver dollar to make silver 20 times as heavy as the gold in the gold dollar. If that does not explain, the Republic must give it up.—Republic.

ing that after this date Park's Sure

A YOUNG man in Hannibal who is very particular about his washing, lately wrote a note to his washer woman and one to his sweetheart, and by strange fatality he put the wrong address on each envelope and sent them off. The washer woman was well pleased with an invitation to take a ride the next day, but when the young lady read: "If you tumble up my shirt bosom any more, as you did the last time, I will go somewhere else," she cried all evening and declared she would never speak to him again.
